ABOUT THE WORKSHOP

www.tijforum.org

The partnership between the Thailand Institute of Justice (TIJ) and the Institute for Global Law and Policy (IGLP) at Harvard Law School provides Thai and international emerging leaders with exclusive opportunities to share and strengthen their policy analysis and critical thinking skills by working closely with world-class faculty members from the Harvard IGLP network. This interactive, inter-disciplinary, and innovative approach in mainstreaming the rule of law into policy discourses promises to be a unique and unparalleled experience.

The objective of the TIJ-IGLP Workshop is to cultivate an appreciation of the importance of the rule of law, particularly its vital role in the achievement of sustainable development. It provides a platform that encourages constructive discussions among practitioners across sectors and promotes interactive learning through experience-sharing. With a deeper understanding of how and why the rule of law is essential for equitable and inclusive socio-economic growth, human rights protection, and sustainable development, participants will become a part of an ever-growing network of emerging leaders who will act as agents of change in their respective fields, and bridge thinking and practice.

AT A GLANCE: The Workshop Format

The TIJ Workshop focuses on peer-to-peer learning and the necessary skills for understanding policies and initiatives that affect people’s lives and the world at large, while drawing upon the rule of law as a guiding framework. Participants will have the opportunities to:

• Learn from experts who will present their views by engaging with topics related to global law and policy during the Special Lectures
• Join the Policy Teams and share their practical or policy experiences, explore contemporary issues and literature about relevant topics on the rule of law in order to extract best practices and innovative approaches to integrate the rule of law into their policy-making repertoire
• Participate in the Streams or interactive mini lectures taught by faculty members from the Harvard IGLP network to review current scholarly developments and engage in case-based learning
• Engage with peers from across the world in the Problem Labs to construct innovative solutions and tools to tackle emerging issues in the region
• Join the Field Trip and explore the linkages between the rule of law and policy-making in real-life context
• Enjoy a unique Thai experience during the Cultural Outing in an exclusive setting
• Present their views and concluding thoughts at the TIJ Public Forum on the Rule of Law and Sustainable Development

THE OPENING PLENARY

He has played a crucial role in mainstreaming restorative justice and community justice in Thailand, which contributed to the development of innovative frameworks within the field of alternative dispute resolution. Throughout his career, he has sought to promote the rule of law as one of the fundamental building blocks for sustainable development through a multi-stakeholder approach, and called for greater public participation in the justice system.

Chao Phraya Scenic Route
Mae Nam Chao Phraya is the major river of Thailand, which ows south from the central plains through Bangkok for more than 365 kilometers (225 miles) into the Gulf of Thailand. It is formed by four main tributaries: the Ping, Wang, Yom and Nan Rivers which run from the northern watershed of the country to merge at Pak Nam Pho estuary in Nakhon Sawan Province. In Thai, Mae Nam is a generic term for river, which literally means mother water; while Chao Phraya is equivalent to a Grand Duke. The two terms together truly re ects the reverence Thais have for this waterway. In ancient times, rivers and canals were vital for communication, transportation and trade. Essentially, the Chao Phraya, or the River of Kings—as King Rama I named it—is the lifeblood of Bangkok. The Cruise provides an exciting way to discover Bangkok’s rich history along the banks of the Chao Phraya, including the traditional ways of life and some of the city’s most iconic landmarks:

The Grand Palace, which was a former residence for King Rama I to King Rama V of the Rattanakosin Kingdom and the Wat Phra Kaew, which houses the world-renowned Emerald Buddha

Phra Sumen Fort, or one of the two last remaining original forts that were built to protect the city from naval invasions in the late 1700’s

Rama VIII Bridge, which was inaugurated on the birth anniversary of the late King Ananda Mahidol, after whom it is named

Royal Barges National Museum, which houses several royal barges used in Royal ceremonial processions on the Chao Phraya

Wat Ratchanataram (Temple of the Golden Bell), which was built during the great Ayutthaya period, and later became the residence of the Supreme Patriarch during the Thon Buri period

Wat Arun (Temple of Dawn), which features the 82-meter-high Khmer-style pagoda that attracts the first light of the morning with a pearly iridescence

Wat Kalayanamit, which was built under the reign of Rama III in the first half of the 19th Century

TIJ Site Visit: dtac Accelerate

The Total Access Communication Public Company Limited or dtac was established as a limited company in August 1989 to provide wireless telecommunications services in Thailand. It is the third largest GSM mobile phone provider in Thailand after AIS and True. It is owned by Telenor, and as of 2011 it had 23.2 million subscribers with the market share of subscribers at around 30 percent.

In 2012, the company founded dtac Accelerate to support and foster an environment conducive to the growth of Thai start-up ecosystem. With the aim to find the most promising start-up businesses and elevate them beyond their potentials, dtac Accelerate is regarded as a pioneer among accelerators for technology start-ups in Thailand. It has the mission of scouting for the brightest ideas to create the next Unicorn—or a start-up with valuation over USD1 billion (THB33 billion)—of Southeast Asia. For the past six years, dtac Accelerate has nurtured 46 teams from 6 different batches, with a total valuation of over USD16 million (THB53.2 billion). Approximately 72 percent of the start-ups from dtac Accelerate have secured vital follow-up funding from regional and global investors, putting Thailand in the top three countries in this space in Southeast Asia. This success rate has helped draw top-notch tech entrepreneurs and world-class experts from overseas to exclusively participate in the camp as mentors. The dtac Accelerate program is used as the role model for other accelerators in seven countries under the Telenor operations.

A few selected cases from the program include:

- Ricult – a social enterprise that seeks to improve farmers’ productivity through the utilization of machine learning and satellite imagery to create alternative credit scores for Thai farmers who are unable to access formal financial services. It has been named the best Social Enterprise in Southeast Asia and Oceania in the Global Social Venture Competition and the Most Innovative Agribusiness by the UN. Ricult also won the Fintech Disrupt Challenge organized by Bill Gates Foundation.

- Health at Home – a start-up aims at providing personalized home care services to your doorstep for elderly and patients with chronic/critical diseases.

- Ooca – an online platform that helps connect people with psychiatrists and psychologists through video calls. This application not only allows individuals to receive necessary professional assistance to alleviate mental issues, but also to avoid the stigma that comes with it.

The January 2019 TIJ International Forum is the seventh instalment of a continuing series of open discussions about regional approaches to and issues in mainstreaming the rule of law, the efficacy of these attempts and cases that embody the rule of law in action. The goal is to use the concept of the rule of law as a lens to better understand complex socio-economic issues to establish a systematic framework to inform policy development. Leading academics, experts, and policymakers will engage in dialogues and exchange views on their interpretation of the rule of law through a multitude of perspectives.

As the technologies of government, industry and civil society change, so much the law. Keynote addresses will examine the intrinsic linkages innovation and technology in strengthening the rule of law to create more just and inclusive societies, the balance between technology-driven economies and justice reforms, as well as the inextricable relations between law and technology.

Tackling complex development challenges such as cyber threats, structural inequalities, access to justice and corruption in an ever-evolving environment requires more than cooperative efforts of key players across national boundaries, rather it calls for greater emphasis on adopting novel solutions to unlock the full potential of the rule of law.

The 2019 TIJ International Forum will include panel discussions, featuring faculty members from the network of Institute for Global Law and Policy (IGLP) at Harvard Law School, regional and national experts, as well as TIJ Fellows from the Workshop for Emerging Leaders on the Rule of Law and Policy. These sessions will position the rule of law among salient socio-economic issues.

The first panel on “Regional Experiences” will be led by emerging leaders from the TIJ Workshop on the Rule of Law and Policy. To conclude the workshop, this session will provide an opportunity for selected emerging leaders to present rule of law-based solutions for emerging public policy issues in different regional contexts, as well as opportunity to adopt and analyze lessons learned.

The second panel on “Improving Equality and Justice through Innovation and Technology” will be led by regional experts and faculty members from the IGLP network. This discussion will explore how technological advancements and innovative policy tools could play a crucial role in reducing structural inequalities rooted in socioeconomic backgrounds, gender, education opportunities and access to redress mechanisms. Panelists will illustrate the ways in which effective design and implementation of more human-centric and digital-based solutions could improve daily lives of vulnerable and marginalized groups, in tandem with advances and innovative policy tools could play crucial roles in reducing structural inequalities rooted in socioeconomic backgrounds, gender, education opportunities and access to redress mechanisms.

The third panel on “Using Technology to Respond to Criminal Challenges in a Borderless World” will be led by regional experts and faculty members from the IGLP network. This discussion will highlight how globalized economies and regions have experienced an increase in free flows of goods, along with a growing dependence on networked digital systems, products and services. This trend is wrought with a rise in both the variety and quantity of cyber challenges, which continue to infiltrate the daily lives of individuals and threaten the stability of modern institutions. In light of this, panelists will examine how concerted efforts across sectors and borders could create digital-based solutions and strong infrastructures to fight against corruption and address cyber threats.

ABOUT THE THAILAND INSTITUTE OF JUSTICE

The Thailand Institute of Justice (TIJ) is a research institute affiliated with the United Nations Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice Programme Network or UN-PNI.

TIJ’s vision is to be a promoter of change to enhance justice system and promote a culture of lawfulness in Thailand and wider international communities through research, capacity-building and policy advocacy activities in crime prevention, criminal justice and the rule of law.

Building on Thailand’s engagement in the UN Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice and the UN Crime Congresses, TIJ serves as a bridge that transports global ideas to local practices, focusing on cross-cutting issues including the interconnection between the rule of law and sustainable development, peace and security.

TIJ primarily seeks to promote criminal justice system reform through the implementation of international standards and norms related to the vulnerable groups in contact with the justice system while promoting coordination among domestic justice constituencies and strengthening regional cooperation, particularly within ASEAN region.

One of the core beliefs of TIJ is to invest in human resources and practical knowledge base on the rule of law since TIJ recognizes that the rule of law and an effective and fair criminal justice system are integral components to inclusive economic growth, human rights protection and sustainable development.

ABOUT THE INSTITUTE FOR GLOBAL LAW AND POLICY

The Institute for Global Law and Policy (IGLP) at Harvard Law School is a collaborative faculty effort to nurture innovative approaches to global policy in the face of a legal and institutional architecture manifestly ill-equipped to address our most urgent global challenges. Global poverty, conflict, injustice and inequality are also legal and institutional regimes. The IGLP explores the ways in which they are reproduced and what might be done in response. We aim to provide a platform at Harvard for new thinking about international legal and institutional arrangements, with particular emphasis on ideas and issues of importance to the global South. Professor David Kennedy serves as Institute Director.
