ABOUT THE THAILAND INSTITUTE OF JUSTICE

The vision of the TIJ is to be a promoter of change in the enhancement of the justice system and the integration of the rule of law into sustainable development frameworks in Thailand, the ASEAN region, and internationally through research, capacity building, and policy advocacy activities. Building on Thailand's engagement in the UN Commission on Crime Prevention and Criminal Justice and the UN Crime Congresses, the TIJ serves as a bridge that transfers global norms to local practice focusing on cross-cutting issues including the interconnection between the rule of law and sustainable development, peace and security. The TIJ primarily seeks to promote criminal justice system reform through the implementation of international standards and norms related to vulnerable groups in contact with the justice system while promoting coordination among domestic justice constituencies and strengthening regional cooperation, particularly within the ASEAN region. One of the core beliefs of TIJ concerns the importance of investing in human resources and in the practical knowledge base on the rule of law since the TIJ recognizes that the rule of law and an effective and fair criminal justice system are integral components needed to secure inclusive economic growth, the protection of human rights, and sustainable development.

ABOUT

THE INSTITUTE FOR GLOBAL LAW AND POLICY AT HARVARD LAW SCHOOL

The Institute for Global Law and Policy (IGLP) at Harvard Law School is a collaborative faculty effort to nurture innovative approaches to global policy in the face of a legal and institutional architecture manifestly ill-equipped to address our most urgent global challenges. Global poverty, conflict, injustice, and inequality are also legal and institutional regimes. The IGLP explores how they are reproduced and what might be done in response. They aim to provide a platform at Harvard for new thinking about international legal and institutional arrangements, with particular emphasis on ideas and issues of importance to the global South.

The Institute focuses on young scholars and policy makers who bring new ideas and perspectives to comparative and international legal research and policy. The IGLP aims to facilitate the emergence of a creative dialog among young experts from around the world, strengthening our global capacity for innovation and cooperative research. Each year, the IGLP sponsors a variety of conferences, workshops, and symposia, both in Cambridge and in collaboration with friends abroad. The IGLP regularly hosts both scholars and policy practitioners as Visiting Researchers and Fellows at Harvard, deepening their collaborative network among those seeking new approaches international law, political economy, and economic development from governments, international institutions, the private sector, and the non-governmental sector.

Over the last years, the IGLP has developed a large global network of scholars and policymakers who share their belief that ideas matter, and their commitment to new voices and viewpoints for thinking about global governance, social justice, and economic policy. Their common goal is to better understand how power is exercised in the world today, and how original and critical thinking can transform how policy experts, intellectual leaders, and citizens understand our common global situation.
